

Organic Coffees

If you've never had organic coffee, then you are truly missing out. Organic coffee is grown without the use of DDT, Pesticides, Herbicides or Fungicides. It is grown naturally in fields with other crops and shade trees. This natural process is much healthier for the land, the water and the farmers. Organic coffee is also much healthier for consumers because of the lack of chemicals. Consuming Organic Coffee helps to promote sustainable agriculture.

Fair Trade Coffees

We love promoting Fair Trade coffees because we love Coffee Farmers. You should buy one of these coffees. They are delicious and you can sleep better knowing that you've helped support a good cause.

Most of the world's coffee farmers are exploited by big business. They are paid less for their beans than it costs for them to grow them. This forces the farmers into a cycle of poverty and debt. Often farmers have to sell their family land to survive. Poor farming practices are often used to be profitable in this atmosphere. Deforestation and pollution from DDT, Pesticides, Herbicides or Fungicides are common practice.

Fair trade prices help to support small farmers by paying them fair prices for their beans. Fair trade promotes healthy sustainable agriculture. For more information, visit the Transfair USA website
